the Ridge whose hospitality to a way-faring Man, has endeared them all to his heart. le the exercise of such exuberant kindness. is would be inviduous to name individuals hat the Author must mention his friend, Kemper, of Cedar Grove, Professor Harrison of the University at Charlottesville, and Rev. William White, of Lexington. If the wriwillish to the Professor Harrison would pare deemed it a compliment that this Ministore affair should have been dedicated to him, such a dedication would have been made, for he is a christian gentleman as well saripe scholar. Many have experienced his courtesy who have visited that seat of Learning, one of the chairs which he so worthily cocupies. To the Fisher boy who took me across the river, it is my intention to gad an elegantly bound copy of Walton's complete Angler. Captain Mobiler, the cicerope of Weyer's Cave, was good amough to st that a description of his subterranean miracle would be an ample compensation for his civilities to the Pedestrian. S. R. H.

The editor of the Alexandria Gazette: I feel authorized to say, after consultation with men of all parties, and of all varieties of political opinion, that an earnest desire pressile in Alexandria that ROBERT E. SCOTT, esq., of Fauquier, should become a candidate to represent this District in Congress. From conversations with several persos from other parts of the District, I am led to believe that this desire is general. It is not necessary here to say anything reseats of this gentleman. These are too well known all over the State, and especially in me portion comprised in the District. I will only say that a more sale and efficient representative of a Virginia constituency cannot be named. A WORKING MAN.

Gambling to Washington-Congress at the Faro Table.

The auction at a well known gambling house, in Washington, attracted a large crowd, among which was a liberal proportion of gripoline.

The house, itself, stands conspicuously on Pennsylvania avenue, within two squares of the Capitol, and on the frequented side of the street. It is as well known to citizens and strangers as the White House, and yet has mysteriously escaped the optics of the police for years. The furniture, appointment and tone of the whole place were without the least approach to refinement, and not the first symptom of luxurious living was visible anywhere. It is impossible that this resort, as seen, could have presented any temptation but for those swayed by the passion of gambling, or that other, and if possible, worse class, who are willing to be the pimps and dependents of these heils. The notoriety which the house acquired was reflected entirely by the character, of its visitors, too many of whom were in public life, and from the hold which the proprietor necessarily obtained upon his victime, through the judulconcerning the success of the chief character in this Pandemonium, like the description of the concern itself, were exaggerated in every respect. He is said to have died, leaving $50,000 of other people's, money as the bulk of his fortune. As artificial display was nearly as much a part of the game as cards, his on the avenue which excelled all rivalry in decoration, and may be said to have defied competition. These gambling resorts have increased fearfully at Washington, within the last ten years, and it is notorious that they have done more to demoralize legislation than all the other debasing and currupting influences which have been brought to bear upon weak, venal, or needy members of Congress, I was deeply impressed by the silent but elequent witnesses of this fact, when the drawers of Pendleton's desk were opened yesterday, and numerous bills relating to schemes before Congress where exposed to public view .-The misery and wretchedness and degradation inflicted upon men and families by these is one of common town talk, that their tables are the daily resort of a large class of such voters, in preference to the hotels. Strange as it may seem, the influence has so ramified that it was feared, at one time, in the early stages of the Kansas struggle, last session, when the House was hearly equally divided, that the scale would be turned by a turn of the screw upon particular members who were known to be in the power of the gambiers. It may well te asked where are we drifting, when such things which would astonish the country if exposed.

Arrival of the Overland Mail. Sr. Louis, Nov. 21 .-- The overland San Francisco mail with dates to the 25th ult. has arrived. Heavy rains extending throngout the State are reported, and the miners have been driven from several of the river beds by the high water. The steamer Cortex from Victoria, had arrived at San Francisco with five hundred passengers and $42,000 in gold dust. The eports from Frazer river are more favorable. Ebenezer Thayer, Boston, committed suicide on the 24th ult. Col. Wright had returned to Walla Walla. Business at San Francisco had been very dull but the demand from the country had improved somewhat. The premature advent of the rainy seasons had imparted fresh confidence in the ensuing winter business.
